

Vintage Day Show & Shine at the Ukrainian Village

Sunday morning seven of us meet in Capilano to drive out to the Ukrainian Village. It was suggested that we take the Yellowhead highway and save 10 minutes but we decided a peaceful country drive was a better idea. Colin in his Land-rover had already left as he thought he might need a head start. Phil Johnson and Inez White lead a group of British cars from Tofield.

I brought a canopy to erect and give us some protection from the sun, but it wasn't needed as we were parked in a nice shady area.

As we were setting up John and Dee Crawley pulled in in the Mini Convertible ( the mini won the peoples choice award).

If after checking out the cars you wanted something different there was a great display of vintage tractors.

There was plenty of entertainment if you wanted to sit and relax.

Just about everyone took a stroll through the village on foot or horse drawn wagon. The village is a great place to visit if you have never been. The farm houses, general stores, blacksmith shop, hotel and churches gives you a glimpse of what life was like for the early settlers. The sod house actually looked pretty comfortable inside.

Here are some of the cars that caught my eye.

A white 1957 T-Bird convertible and a Ural motorcycle that has been driven all across Europe, Australia, Canada and the U.S to the tip of South America.

I thought that this replica 1934 Mercedes was nice, but the 1949 Cadillac with original paint, motor and chrome was a real winner.

After checking out the cars and the village relaxing in the shade seemed to be ideal. As we left about 4pm the clouds came in. The rain came down about 20 minutes after I got home, hope no one got wet.
